Commercial Spaceflight: Reflections on Business Proposals by Industries

In recent years, commercial spaceflight has become an increasingly important topic for the entire space community. In the United States several companies are currently working on projects dedicated to commercial spaceflight. Also in Europe and in the rest of the space world the interest in this segment of the space activities is constantly growing.

This panel will try to give the audience a better understanding on the present state of the commercial spaceflight business models, and also to have a clearer idea on future expectations and developments for these business models.

Panel 2 – 18:30 – 19:45

Commercial Spaceflight and Institutional Users

How strongly will institutional users rely on commercial space assets versus their own assets? Will the institutional users continue to develop their own infrastructures or will they rely solely on the industry providers? And, how big could the market share of institutional users in the commercial spaceflight market be?

This panel will try to answer these questions and more on the interactions between commercial spaceflight providers and the institutional users.
