Connecting @ll Space People

The International Astronautical Federation

Founded in 1951, the International Astronautical Federation (IAF) is the world's leading space advocacy body with over 621 members from 84 countries on six continents including all leading agencies, space companies, industries, research institutions, universities, societies, associations, museums and institutes worldwide.

Following its motto Connecting @ll Space People and its vision of "a space-faring world cooperating for the benefit of humanity", the Federation advances knowledge about space, supporting the development and application of space assets by promoting global cooperation.

As organizer of the annual International Astronautical Congress (IAC) as well as other thematic conferences and workshops, the IAF actively encourages the development of astronautics for peaceful purposes and supports the dissemination of scientific and technical information related to space.

IAF Member Organizations

Over the past 70 years the International Astronautical Federation (IAF) aimed to represent the whole space sector by bringing together organization from all over the world.

Starting off in a world divided from the Cold War, the IAF has continuously increased its efforts for being as representative as possible of the changes of the sector by including year after year new countries, organizations, and continents.

The IAF is now proud to count over 621 members from 84 different countries and 6 continents, and, as the interest towards space keep enlarging and including more nations, these numbers are destined to grow even more.
